MIDNIGHT MADNESS = YOUNGER SHOPPERS FOR SOME RETAILERS

Reuters

Having the right products at the right price at the right time helped make Best Buy one of the early winners in what was a record start for retailers to the holiday shopping season.

The electronics retailer, which was one of the biggest losers in 2010, drew in shoppers by being one of the companies that opened its stores at midnight Thanksgiving night, and unlike in 2010, it focused more on having lower prices for big TVs and other popular items.

"Last year, they weren't as responsive with their pricing as they needed to be. We are seeing a different set of behaviors from them this time around," said Lawrence Creatura, a portfolio manager at Federated Clover Investment Advisors.

Overall, shoppers will have spent a record $52.4 billion, up 16.4 percent from 2011, from Thursday through Sunday, according to a survey for the National Retail Federation, conducted by online research firm BIGresearch.

Many retailers opened at midnight or earlier on Thanksgiving, pulling in younger people who were willing to stay up late for deals on electronics and toys instead of getting up before dawn Friday.

Aside from Best Buy, analysts and investors also named Macy's and Wal-Mart Stores among those that were strong starters.

On the flip side, retailers that opened late or held the line on promotions failed to impress.

Gap and Sears also "need to step up," said Craig Johnson, president of consulting firm Customer Growth Partners, adding that he worries the chains may be too late already.

Despite the strong start, many remain skeptical if retailers will be able to maintain the sales momentum seen this weekend.

"One swallow does not a holiday season make," Johnson said. "After the deepest recession in decades, the solid Black Friday weekend is welcome news, but we're only in the second quarter of a long playoff game."

Online it's all Amazon, all the time

Reuters

Online retail sales on Black Friday jumped 26 percent this year, led by amazon.com, ComScore said Sunday.

Black Friday online sales reached $816 million, making it the heaviest spending day on the Internet so far in 2011, according to ComScore, a closely watched tracker of Internet activity.

Year-over-year growth on Black Friday in 2010 was 9 percent, so this year's 26 percent sales increase online was much stronger, the firm also noted.

Fifty million Americans visited online retail sites on Black Friday, representing an increase of 35 percent versus a year ago, ComScore data showed.

Chicagoans were some of the busiest mobile shoppers on Thanksgiving Day, according to data released Friday by PayPal.

The online payment company owned by eBay Inc. said global mobile payment volume through PayPal Mobile on Thanksgiving was up 511 percent from last year's holiday. Lessons from Maggie Daley

Ana Fernatt

» redeye@tribune.com

Maggie Daley passed away on Thanksgiving Day. She had been the woman behind former Mayor Richard M. Daley during his 22 years in office. As sitting Mayor Emanuel said, "While Mayor Daley served as head of the city, Maggie was its heart." The soft, caring core to a powerful machine.

We could learn a lot from Maggie Daley.

The position of first lady is not something that we the people vote for, but she's just as important as the official second-in-command. She's the woman who's there when times are rough and stresses are high. She's the support system and sounding board. She has the most fragile task of all: protecting his heart. As they say, behind every great man is a great woman.

Although Richard Daley held the elected position, it was a dream the two of them shared and pursued together. Even Mayor Daley said in his 1989 mayoral acceptance speech that Maggie was "the best campaigner in the family." They were married while he campaigned for state Senate. His goal was her goal.

I'm not saying that one partner should take a backseat or be quiet. Instead, we should find someone who wants the same big dream. Two heads are always better than one. Sure, it was Richard Daley's name that carried the title, but it was Maggie's victory just the same.

A good first lady may not have the same public power as her husband, but she's in an equal private partnership with him. They have created the ideal example of love and teamwork. She's the top, the best. It's no surprise that Jay-Z would call Beyonce his first lady. They're in it together. Their individual dreams are magnified within the other person.

Who wouldn't want to be a first lady? The unofficial title even sounds important. You're not just a wife, you're the top woman in his life. You're different. You're special. Whether you are dating a presidential candidate or married to a plumber, we all should seek out that first lady status. Be worth that title.

When President Obama has a rough day,

WILLIAM DESHAZER/
TRIBUNE FILE

Michelle is there for him. She's there every single night. She was there before his term started and she'll be there long after he leaves the Oval Office. For a first lady, the commitment is much deeper than the length of a term. She would've been there for Barack whether he won the election or not. Michelle is very accomplished and highly educated in her own right. Having someone like that in your corner can only make you stronger.

Finding someone to share your life with is such an interesting pursuit. Part of it is identifying that physical attraction and emotional connection in one place. The other, less publicized, part is finding someone whom you can build your dreams with. Find the right partner and nothing will stop either of you.

Maggie Daley had it right. Be his first lady, as long as he is your first man.

REMEMBERING MAGGIE

Chicagoans from all walks of life pay their respects to former first lady

Chicago Tribune

An hour before the start of a wake for former Chicago first lady Maggie Daley on Sunday, a line of mourners stretched from the door of the Chicago Cultural Center along Washington Street and up Michigan Avenue.

The line soon stretched even farther north along Michigan, to Randolph Street, as a crowd made up mostly of Daley's contemporaries, with some older and younger mourners sprinkled in, gathered to pay their respects to the wife of former Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley.

A choir sang in the background as mourners walked by a closed casket, flowers and a large color photograph of a smiling Daley.

Police in jackets with gold buttons and round-topped hats supervised a crowd huddled next to the stately light stone building, their attire ranging from dress hats and Sunday suits to blue jeans and Bears gear. The columns of the building, formerly the Chicago Public Library, along Randolph were wrapped entirely in black and purple bunting.

Many of the mourners waited more than an hour in a steady, chilly drizzle to enter the building, shivering in heavy coats and trying to stay dry under umbrellas.

C.A. Lofton, a retired teacher for the City Colleges of Chicago, said she attended the wake "to honor and pay tribute to the work [Daley] has done over the years with the youth, regardless of race and social class."

"People are out here because they care," Lofton said as she left the Cultural Center. "I haven't seen a line like this since [former mayor] Harold Washington died."

Curtis Gregory, who worked in the Mayor's Office of Employment and Training under Mayor Daley, said attending the wake was an easy decision.

"I had to come down," Gregory said, holding his coat closed against the wind as he left the wake. "She was a deep person. I just like the fact that what she had to give, she gave to the people of Chicago. She did it as an indi-

Retired teacher Margie Zaugh of Chicago clutched an arrangement of pink tulips. The flowers reportedly were Daley's favorite and a tulip was even named after her. The "Tulipa Maggie Daley" is planted along the Magnificent Mile.

"I can't see tulips without thinking of her," Zaugh said. "She was a great lady."

Church reboot

Chicago Catholics get first look at new Mass

Chicago Tribune

Roman Catholics across the U.S. followed a new translation of the Mass on Sunday that includes several changes to prayers and responses that the faithful have recited for decades.

The revisions proved challenging for parishioners and priests alike. Cardinal Francis George, the archbishop of Chicago, said even he stumbled over some of the new wording while celebrating Mass.

"I tripped up a couple of times," George said. "I found myself reverting back, and therefore I was a little bit upset at myself."

The changes are meant to make the English version of the Mass adhere more closely to its Latin roots, church leaders have said. Churches have been holding meetings about the changes for months to discuss the modifications.

Many churches in the Chicago area—including Holy Name Cathedral—printed "cheat sheets" outlining the changes for churchgoers.

Still, old habits proved hard to break. Many responses from congregations were a jumble of old and new phrases.

Despite the confusion, Kevin Hogan, who attended Mass at the cathedral, said the changes made the Mass feel more reverential.

"It will take some getting used to," said Hogan, 51, of Cleveland. "It was really different. I liked it."

Batteries on Chevy Volt spark concern

1 Federal safety regulators announced Friday that they have opened "a formal safety defect investigation" into the Chevrolet Volt over concerns the electric car's battery may pose a significant fire risk.

5 One man has been found dead and five are missing after a Russian-crewed cargo ship sank in gale force weather overnight in the Irish Sea, Britain's coast guard agency said Sunday.

Two men clinging to life rafts were airlifted by a rescue helicopter co-piloted by Prince William, son of heir-to-the-throne Prince

Charles, a defense ministry spokesman said.

They were taken to hospital and a search was extended across a 300-square-mile area of sea about 20 miles off the coast of north Wales.

The cargo ship Swanland, carrying 3,000 tons of limestone, issued a mayday call reporting that its hull was cracking in the bad weather and taking on water.

William, who married Catherine Middleton at London's Westminster Abbey in April, is serving as a Royal Air Force search and rescue helicopter pilot at a base in Anglesey on the Welsh coast.

He has taken part in a number of previous rescues, the defense ministry spokesman said.

How does pepper spray work?

Chicago Tribune

Pepper spray seems to be awfully popular lately.

Earlier this month, a police officer was videotaped blasting a row of seated protesters at the University of California at Davis. Then just two days ago, a Black Friday customer at a Wal-Mart in L.A. splashed fellow shoppers in a fit of “shopping rage” as she tried to get her hands on an Xbox, according to police.

So, just what is this stuff? Imagine being sprayed in the face with hot peppers, as the name suggests. Though it rarely has long-term effects it is, at best, very painful.

Specifically, it’s the active ingredient capsaicin that gives it the burn, said Karen Phinney, a research chemist at the National Institute of Standards and Technology.

“The intent is to isolate the ingredients in hot peppers that provide the spicy taste but can also serve as an irritant to the eyes and respiratory system,” Phinney said.

The spray also causes inflammation and burning in the nose and throat, and on the skin, said Dr. Dino Rumoro, chairman for the department of emergency medicine at Rush

A University of California at Davis police officer pepper-sprays students. REUTERS

University Medical Center. Most effects wear off in 30 to 90 minutes.

Even those nearby can inhale the particles, leading to lung spasms and coughing—some shoppers at the Los Angeles Wal-Mart complained of sore throats. The spray also can irritate the cornea and cause temporary blindness.

“It’s like having Vaseline on a window,” Rumoro said. “It’s all blurry, and maybe you just see shadows or images.”

PEPPER SPRAY MEANT TO SUBDU

Several recent high-profile incidents have involved pepper spray, a common, nonlethal substance used to control and disperse crowds and for self-defense.

HOW IT WORKS

Pepper spray irritates the eyes, nose, throat and lungs. Most effects last 30 to 90 minutes.

EFFECTS

- » Burning, swollen eyes
- » Inflamed throat and respiratory tract; coughing and shallow breathing
- » Burning and redness of the skin
- » Runny nose
- » Disorientation, fear

TREATMENT DO’S AND DON’TS

- » Do rinse affected area with water as soon as possible. Gentle soaps, such as baby shampoo, also can be used.
- » Don’t rub affected areas, as this could spread agent and create more irritation.
- » Do remove any clothing that may have pepper spray because it could prolong exposure.

KICKED AROUND

OAKLAND HAS A FIELD (GOAL) DAY IN HANIE'S FIRST START AT QB

RedEye

Caleb Hanie, this is your cue, this is your mission—if you choose to accept it. With the Bears on a five-game winning streak and fans thinking playoffs, you can save the season filling in for injured quarterback Jay Cutler. All you have to do is win a three or four games, and there will be football in January in Chicago. Then, of course, Cutler likely will be back to bask in the playoff spotlight. But we'll cross that bridge when we get to it. First things first. Let's see how Hanie performs with the season essentially on the line.

FIRST COMPLETION

On the Bears' second play of the game, Hanie finds Roy Williams for a 5-yard gain. Hanie's next completion, on the Bears' second drive, also goes to Williams, this time for 10 yards. Maybe that's one thing he can teach Cutler: finding Williams, who was supposed to be the Bears' big wide receiver addition in the offseason.

FIRST GOOD CALEB MOMENT

He runs for 17 yards for an apparent first down with 7:28 left in the first quarter, but it's wiped out by a personal foul on Tyler Clutts, of course. Get it? Clutts.

FIRST BAD CALEB MOMENT

Facing a first-and-15, Hanie can't find a receiver, so he rolls out, throws and promptly finds one—wearing an Oakland Raiders uniform. Hey, Caleb, Jay can do that too.

FIRST SACK

With 4:12 left in the first quarter, Rolando McClain takes down Hanie for an 8-yard loss. Now he knows how Cutler feels.

SECOND BAD CALEB MOMENT

On the Bears' third drive, Hanie has another "what's he doing" moment with 1:36 left in the first when he launches a throw deep to Matt Forte, who's double-covered. Michael Huff picks it off and returns it 24 yards.

FIRST 'HELL YEAH'

With the Bears facing third-and-18, Hanie scrambles 24 yards to the Oakland 31. More important, it seemed to breathe life into the formerly flaccid Bears. Yes, I said flaccid.

FIRST TOUCHDOWN PASS

Three plays later, Hanie connects on a crossing Johnny Knox for a 29-yard touchdown that gives the Bears their first lead of the game at 7-6.

FIRST D'OH

Hanie throws an ill-advised pass to Kellen Davis on an ill-devised screen in the red zone that is picked off and returned 73 yards by Kamerion Wimbley. It results in an Oakland field goal, Sebastian Janikowski's third of the game, and essentially is a 10-point turnaround, assuming the Bears would have scored a touchdown.

FIRST BIG 'WHAT IF'

With 11:42 left in the game and Bears trailing by 11 and in Oakland territory, Hanie overthrows an open Williams, eventually forcing the Bears to settle for a field goal. Instead of being behind four points, it's an eight-point game.

FIRST COMEBACK?

Hanie finds Knox for an 81-yard gain to the Raiders' 9 with 2:26 left to give the Bears life. Two plays later, Hanie connects with Davis for a touchdown to pull the Bears within five with 2:11 left.

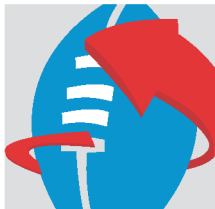

FIRST LOSS

Despite the late heroics, Hanie and the Bears collectively didn't have what it takes to take down Oakland, as the Raiders ride the foot of Janikowski (six field goals) to beat the Bears and drop them to 7-4.

Celebrate good times, c'mon!

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY THIS WEEK IN THE NFL

Instant Replay

By Brian Moore REDEYE

It was the touchdown celebration of the day, if not the season.

After Buffalo receiver Steve Johnson caught a 5-yard pass that gave the Bills a 14-7 lead over the N.Y. Jets, Johnson unholstered his finger guns and proceeded to "shoot himself" in the thigh.

The celebration mocked Jets receiver Plaxico Burress' famous self-inflicted gunshot wound that sent him to jail three years ago.

But he wasn't done. Johnson then mocked Jets receiver Santonio Holmes' flight-crew moves by spreading his arms and flying through the end zone before "crashing" to the turf.

He was flagged for excessive celebration. You think?

OH YES! Beanie Wells

The Arizona Cardinals haven't had much to cheer about this season. But on Sunday, in the Cards' 23-20 win over St. Louis, running back Beanie Wells had Arizona fans buzzing—and his fantasy owners smiling with a 228-yard, one-touchdown day.

OH NO! Blaine Gabbert

Admit it, you didn't even know this Jacksonville quarterback existed. Well, Sunday's performance won't help. He was so bad, 13-of-29 for 136 yards, that he was replaced by Luke McCown. Yes, THE Luke McCown.

UH-OH Matt Leinart

If you're a Houston Texans quarterback named Matt, chances are you're injured. First, starter Matt Schaub is put on injured reserve last week, then his replacement, Matt Leinart, leaves Sunday's game with a shoulder injury and didn't return. Call it an unwelcome, Matt.

1 Why did Jay Cutler fly himself out to Sunday's Bears-Oakland game?

He needed to get away from his suitors. As a QB with a useless throwing hand, the Colts were showing interest.

Because if you had the option to go to the Bay or sit at home in Chicago weather, you wouldn't?

Kristi Cav needed the frequent flier miles.

Because Kristin Cavallari was dancing with the black hole at halftime.

Because it's too far to walk. Duh.

2 How did Mike Martz's "sucker" scheme get its name?

I can only guess he was watching game tape of Detroit's defensive line when brain-lightning struck.

Well, every time the Bears try it they get us all to believe it'll work. We're the suckers.

I've always thought of Martz as the PT Barnum of football.

Martz's entire offense is based on the fundamentals of the Blow Pop.

Because he couldn't believe he actually got Lovie Smith to add it to the offense.

3 When I heard the NBA ended its lockout ...

... I wept sweet, happy tears. Think of the people who might've had to give up careers for luxury car driving.

My answers have been boring thus far, huh? Let's turn it up a notch.

... I went from "who cares?" to "who are they again?"

... I thought: Kris Humphries can go back to being an unknown, mediocre, basketball player.

... I was still ears-deep in my Thanksgiving leftovers. What? You were too.

4 What is the symbolism of the Bulls' first game being on Christmas day?

Derrick Rose replaces "teach mom and dad for the fifth time what that button does" as my top activity of the day.

'TIS A GLORIOUS GIFT THAT HAS BEEN VERILY FORSOOTH FRANKINCENSE AND MYRRH, 'TIS'NT IT?

It's like Ralphie getting a bunny suit on "A Christmas Story": Only cute to the one who gives it.

Carlos Boozer is Frosty the Snowman. He's solid in the winter but disappears when the Heat comes around.

The colors red and green will be on display: The Bulls in red and the players with their millions they didn't lose.

5 Who should the Bulls try to add in the shortened "offseason"?

You can never go wrong with the Washington Generals.

Bring back the classic Benny the Bull costume!

Wasn't that Gar Forman at Wal-Mart on Black Friday? Not going to find a shooting guard there, Gar!

Is it too early to start the Dwight Howard-to-Chicago campaign?

Rose grows

New labor deal will benefit Bulls' superstar point guard

Derrick Rose can't be happy that NBA games won't start until Christmas, but the new labor agreement between the players and owners is a gift of sorts for the Bulls guard.

Now that the full details of the deal have been distributed to players and teams, it has been confirmed that Rose is in line to eventually receive an increased maximum contract extension. That's because he won a Most Valuable Player award during his rookie contract, making him "eligible to receive a maximum contract that provides for a starting salary of up to 30 percent of the salary cap."

Since the new salary cap is expected to be near $58 million, Rose's extension will start at $17.4 million as opposed to $14.5 million under the terms of the former collective bargaining agreement.

With 7.5 percent raises, Rose is looking at a five-year deal worth between $100 million and $101 million. That's roughly $17 million more over the life of the deal than he would've made.

That's gotta make losing a couple of months of basketball worth it, right?

What's she know?

Cold: “I should have expected it to be undercooked (they don’t ask how you would like your burger) when five people sent back their food as I waited. I drove pretty far and spent $12 to learn there are better places in Chicago to get a greasy burger.” —BIKERIDER

When it comes to new bars and restaurants, everyone’s got an opinion. While some readers are hot for these recently opened spots, the experience left others cold.

Hot: “[For two, our] total tab came to about $50 (without tip), which is less than we would normally spend at another, similar place. The ambience hasn’t really changed from [when it was previously] Xippo, so it is much more of a ‘bar’ feel versus a restaurant feel.” —ANNIEKHAN3215

Lukewarm: “[The] kitchen still working out the kinks a little with timing issues, however the food was absolutely top-notch. ... [The] hanger steak was average but the sauces were outstanding. Some thought should be given to serving some artisan bread to soak up the sauces ... as it’s a shame to leave a drop of them on your plate.” —ICSSPOTS

Hot: “The food is delicious. [The owner] and his staff are friendly and genuinely excited about their food—always a great sign. Try the pomegranate soup or the pizzas. BYOB.” —HUNTRYAN

4.74 degrees of separation

CNN

In the Facebook age—when digital “friends” are just a click away—the distance between people seems to be shrinking, according to data the social network released recently.

The adage maintains there are “six degrees of separation” between any two people on Earth, meaning any two people would know each other through no more than six intermediary contacts.

On Facebook, however, the average user is only 4.74 degrees away from any other Facebooker.

That conclusion comes from a non-peer-reviewed study of 721 million active Facebook users, released by Facebook in collaboration with the Università degli Studi di Milano.

Facebook calls the analysis “the largest social network studies ever released.”

The Palo Alto, Calif., company says 99.6 percent of all Facebook users studied were separated by five degrees or less from any other Facebook user; 92 percent were separated by only four degrees.

Furthermore, that distance appears to be shrinking quickly.

“The average distance in 2008 was 5.28 hops, while now it is 4.74,” Facebook says.

While online Facebook friends are more likely to be linked to far-flung friends-of-friends, their immediate circles of contacts are remarkably homogenous in terms of age and geography.

Within the U.S., for instance, users on average are linked by three intermediary contacts.

The findings do highlight the idea that the Internet is bringing people closer together—something social media users can sense with or without this data.

One last burning question: Where does Kevin Bacon fit into this?

*A minimum balance of $100.00 is required to open a 'my green checking' account. To receive stated Annual Percentage Yield (APY) and up to $12 in ATM fee refunds nationwide, you must meet the following qualifications each monthly statement cycle: 1. Make 12 signature-based (non PIN), point of sale (POS) purchases with your Standard Bank Debit MasterCard®. All 12 required purchases must post within the same monthly statement cycle. 2. Receive a minimum of one Direct Deposit to your account during the monthly statement cycle. 3. Receive Electronic Statements via our free online banking service (valid e-mail address is required). If these qualifications are met during the monthly statement cycle and your daily balance is $25,000.00 or less, the interest rate paid on the entire balance will be 2.221% with an APY of 2.25%. An interest rate of 0.305% will be paid only for that portion of your daily balance that is greater than $25,000.00. The APY for accounts with a balance greater than $25,000.00 will range from 2.25% to 0.31%, depending on the balance in the account. If you do not meet the qualifications during a monthly statement cycle, your account will still function as a free checking account earning 0.05% APY and you will not receive ATM refunds for that time period. Annual Percentage Yields for this account are current as of October 1, 2011 and may change at any time.

6 WEIRD SHOPS

Reuters

As the holidays approach, there are numerous things to dread: long hours spent in airports, seasonal weight gain and searching for gifts for everyone on your list. To help with the shopping this year, the members and editors of travel website VirtualTourist (virtualtourist.com) have compiled a list of the "World's Top 10 Unusual Shops." Here are the top six:

1 The Evolution Store New York

Despite being located in trendy SoHo, this store feels like an offshoot of the Natural History Museum; it's filled with skulls, Brazilian agate, fossils and framed creatures. The store even has its own entomology department, with an astounding array of insects, from butterflies to scorpions, all available for purchase.

2 Duke of Uke London

Duke of Uke is London's one and only ukulele and banjo emporium. The Duke also stocks a wide range of other instruments, including vintage ukuleles, guitars, acoustic bass guitars, mandolins and harmonicas. The store serves as a cultural hub for its neighborhood, providing ukulele lessons, hosting events and promoting musical performances in the area.

3 Colette Paris

Perhaps the very first "concept" store, Colette is truly a lifestyle boutique. Its location on Rue Saint-Honore makes it a central spot for Parisian fashion, but it even houses a downstairs "water bar" that serves more than 100 types of mineral water. It also functions as an exhibition space for artists and culture icons such as Bruce Weber, Todd Eberle and Terry Richardson. Where else in the world can you pick up an Alaïa belt, the new issue of Wonderland and a Beyoncé paper doll, all under one roof?

4 L'Usine and La Cafeteria

Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam

This unique space combines a fashion boutique, cafeteria and art gallery in one old French colonial building. The décor and

5 Jamonisimo Barcelona, Spain

Located in the Eixample neighborhood of Barcelona, this shop specializes in everything HAM, from acorn-fed Iberian hams to recebo and chorizo. The store also has a few notorious patrons, including chefs Ferran Adrià, Alain Ducasse and Anthony Bourdain. The shop can vacuum-seal selections for you to bring home, or arrange for delivery and corporate gifts.

vibe are influenced by the Indochina era and the food is a fusion of French bistro. The shop itself supplies a range of products from ensembles suited for the Southeast Asian climate to vintage bicycles.

6 Deyrolle Paris

In business since 1831, this taxidermy store carries everything from stuffed zebras and black crows to other various "natural curiosities." Despite a fire in 2008, the store has continued to be open to the public and maintain its fantastic international reputation; it even produced a calendar for 2012, available in the shop and online.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You're experiencing hot sexual fantasies about a past partner when you least expected it. But Mercury is showing you that you still have feelings for your ex.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19
Pluto is forcing you to be social, even though you're nervous as always. Attend some holiday parties and family gatherings and just be yourself and enjoy. You might even meet a sexy new friend.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18
Communication could be disrupted. Don't expect your cell phone to work, and text messages and emails could be delayed. The moon says don't let these technical difficulties spoil the flow of dialogue between you and a flirty pal.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
Your friends want you to party, but you're feeling fat, broke and angry. It's OK to be a hermit and to avoid the holiday madness that always comes around at this time of year. Just don't be a complete Grinch.

Aries March 21-April 19
The moon has you desiring an open relationship. You want to sleep with as many people as possible. Be honest about this. It does you no good to let yourself get caught up in a "serious relationship" when you really don't give a damn about your partner.

Taurus April 20-May 20
A flamboyant sun has you dressing in low-cut blouses or tight jeans so you can show off your fine figure. You'll have fun attracting attention wherever you go. It will be easy to collect phone numbers.

Gemini May 21-June 21
Your partner wants to have "the talk," and you're not up for it. You can't promise to love, honor and obey when you'd prefer to be single. The sun is reminding you that it's OK to be honest.

Cancer June 22-July 22
People keep pressuring you to join them in group social situations and all you want to do is to be alone. You're dreading the holidays. You're in complete angst about the New Year. Venus is reminding you that you don't have to give into peer pressure.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22
Your honey wants to have a lot of intimate time with you. Unfortunately, you just want to screw like bunnies and then go home to play video games. The moon has you at odds with your partner's dreamy, romantic agenda.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Mercury is putting a monkey wrench in your plans. You had hoped to seduce someone in time for a holiday hookup and a sexy date for the new year. Now you have to work a million hours or your intended seduction target has to travel. Bummer.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
You're in an advice-giving mood. You'll teach your lover how to find some hot new erogenous zones on your body. Saturn is turning you into the ultimate sexual teacher.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21
You'll be challenged to step up your sexual game, courtesy of a sensual moon. Maybe your partner is only moderately content in the bedroom. Focus on bringing him or her to the ultimate state of ecstasy to avoid becoming single.

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» lgomez@tribune.com
» @aboutluisgomez

Before teaming up with Joe Germanotta on their yet-to-open restaurant, Joanne, in New York, Table Fifty-Two chef Art Smith teamed up with Germanotta's daughter, Stefani—aka Lady Gaga—on "A Very Gaga Thanksgiving."

Smith, whom Gaga introduced as her "favorite chef in the whole world," appeared on the cooking portion of the ABC special Thursday. The "Top Chef Masters" alum and former personal chef for Oprah Winfrey made fried turkey and waffles alongside Gaga.

"The first thing he ever made me was fried chicken and waffles," Gaga said of Smith during the special, "and I went into a coma that was so incredible that I really think I levitated off the Earth and fell asleep."

Smith said the feeling was mutual. He famously lost 85 pounds and claimed he shed much of the weight dancing to Gaga's hit song "Bad Romance."

"I loved every minute," Smith said of his segment Saturday by email. "... To be asked was such an honor. And it was even more of an honor to take her family's recipes and allow them to inspire our cooking together."

During the special, which averaged 5.4 million total viewers, Smith incorporated Gaga's grandmother's cranberry sauce and her aunt and uncle's spiced pecans, among other items. And in typical Gaga fashion, she wore a Kentucky Derby-worthy hat and a yellow Valentino Couture jacket while cracking eggs. The singer did, however, take the jacket off to whisk the waffle mixture.

"I think I need Mr. Valentino to design a new chef jacket for me," wrote Smith, who watched the special with family at a resort in Sea Island, Ga. "My blue jacket needs an update with the fashionable company that I'm keeping and my new sexy."

BATMAN?

To the Bat-retirement home? Christian Bale (above) hinted strongly at hanging up the Caped Crusader's cowl for good after finishing filming his third Batman movie, "The Dark Knight Rises." "Everything's finished," the actor is quoted as saying in the Philippine Daily Inquirer, according to thr.com. "I wrapped [filming] a few days ago, so that will be the last time I'm taking that cowl off." The movie is due out in the summer. WARNER BROS. PICTURES PHOTO

What better venue for Ryan Gosling and Eva Mendes' budding dating relationship than Paris? The actors took in some sight-seeing in the French capital, including the gravesites of Jim Morrison, Edith Piaf and Oscar Wilde, people.com reports. The two movie stars have been dating since September.

Chaz Bono put a ring on it. Even though Cher's transgender son has been engaged to his girlfriend for a couple of years, the recent "Dancing With the Stars" contestant made it official by presenting Jennifer Elia (both above) with an engagement ring. latimes.com reports. The big moment was scheduled to air Sunday on Bono's documentary series on OWN, "Being Chaz."
